Visitors to Cisco Brewers' can try 16 beer varieties brewed on site. Tours of the facility—$20 with samples, $10 without—are held throughout the year; the live music, cornhole games, and fun atmosphere is free!

20 YEARS

In 1996, The Cable Guy with Jim Carrey was the first film screened at the inaugural Nantucket Film Festival. This year—the festival's 20th anniversary—screenings will be held at various venues from June 24 to 29.

Consisting of 1,117 acres spread across two, finger-like peninsulas, the Cuskata-Coatue Wildlife Refuge is home to deer, raptors, and shorebirds. Access the area, which includes Great Point Light, by boat—or over-sand vehicle from Wauwinet.

20 Quahogs

In business for 22 years, the Seagrille Restaurant has won numerous awards for its quahog chowder. Each gallon of the good stuff is made with the meat of about 20 quahogs.

700

The waters around Nantucket were once known as the "graveyard of the Atlantic" as they have been home to more than 700 shipwrecks. Learn more at the Nantucket Shipwreck & Lifesaving Museum.

160,206

The Nantucket Atheneum welcomed 160,206 visitors in 2013. A library with a unique history with links to the abolitionist movement, the 1847 Greek Revival building is worth a stop. Open Tuesday through Saturday.

50, 30

Built in 1746, the Old Mill on Prospect Street is the oldest functioning mill in America. The mill stands 50 feet tall and each of its four arms extends 30 feet. Daily tours held May through September.

One of many highlights at the Nantucket Whaling Museum is a 46-foot skeleton of a Sperm whale that hangs from the ceiling. The whale washed ashore on New Year's Day in 1998. Learn more at nha.org!

The state-of-the-art Dreamland Film & Performing Arts Center's main theater offers seating for 318. Recently restored, the Dreamland Theater has been home to a Quaker meetinghouse, a roller skating rink, and—for the last century or so—a cinema.

105

Held April 24 to 26, the Nantucket Daffodil Festival harkens the return of spring—and the tourist season! One highlight is the antique car parade, which featured 105 classic cars last year, decorated in true "daffy style."

168

Held Memorial Day weekend, the Figawi is considered the unofficial kickoff to the Cape and Islands' sailing season. 168 boats completed the Hyannis-to-Nantucket course last year. Also, the after-parties are legendary.
